Origins and Development of the Find Someone Who Template

Historical Context of Kagan Structures

Spencer Kagan introduced his cooperative learning structures in the 1980s, aiming to transform traditional teacher-centered classrooms into active, student-centered environments. His approach was grounded in research on group dynamics, motivation, and social interdependence theory.

As part of this movement, the Find Someone Who structure was formalized as a means to promote social interaction and reinforce content knowledge simultaneously. The template format—standardized worksheets or digital forms—was developed to streamline the activity, making it easy for teachers to implement across different subjects and grade levels.

Evolving Design of the Template

Initially, the templates were simple printed sheets with fill-in-the-blank statements. Over time, they have evolved to include:

- Editable digital formats (e.g., Google Forms, interactive PDFs)

- Themed templates aligned with curriculum topics
- Differentiated statements catering to diverse student needs
- Embedded prompts for reflection and peer feedback

This evolution reflects an effort to adapt the activity for varied educational contexts, technology integration, and inclusive practices.
